Public invited to tour new Hancock County Justice Facility

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Open House at the Hancock County Justice Facility continues this week with deputies on hand to conduct tours from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.
More than 350 attended the dedication for the new facility Friday.
United States District Judge Walter J. Gex III said he felt very much a part of the program to get the new facility because he had been serving as Hancock County Board of Supervisors' attorney when the building program was started.
"This could not have been accomplished without a complete county-wide effort," Gex said.
Bay St. Louis Mayor Victor J. Franchot said the new justice facility was a monument to three groups of people: the county officials, the jail committee and the law enforcement officer on the street.
"A jail can only be as good as the people who run it and I believe this new facility is a vote of confidence for the people who are in charge of enforcing the law," he added.
Judge Koets Vlahos, senior circuit court judge, said he was proud to have the new facility in Hancock County and would not take no for an answer.
The bond issue for the new facility was defeated in 1984 but passed the following year.

Circuit Judge James Thomas said putting prisoners in such a "deplorable" place as the old jail was almost stooping as low as the person who had committed a crime.
"We must punish criminals according to the laws of the United States and the State of Mississippi but not any worse," he said.
Also commending the public for their support of the new facility was District Attorney Cono Caramba, Board of Supervisors President A. A. Keller and Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Among those honored at the dedication ceremony were the members of the Hancock County Jail Committee.
They are Chairman Terry Feeney, Vice Chairman Jan Brameyer, Secretary Lana Noonan, Donald Dorn, Ellis Cuevas, Pam Metzler, John Genin, Jerry Heitzman, Walter Gex, Vic Franchot, Bob Hubbard, Fay Luxich, Albert Necaise, Rogers James, Jeff Taylor and the late John McDonnell.
Facility Architect Fred Wagner was also recognized during the program.

Daily trips to Grand Pass no longer necessary for fishermen

By BRENDA HEATHCOCK
Mississippi commercial fishermen will no longer have to travel daily to Grand Pass, La. to pick up their licenses.
The problem has been going on for years, and now it's solved.
The replacement of the old license system with a new one will allow fishermen to pick up their licenses at the Grand Pass cut several hours off the time of Mississippi fishermen who could not pick the license up until after 6 a.m. and had to leave it returned by 6 p.m., Erskine said.
Now it will be much easier on Gulf Coast fishermen who want to fish in Louisiana waters, he added.
Erskine also said he was glad to have been associated with the suit and had gotten a great deal of help from Senator Gene Taylor and the

Waveland receives grant funds for extension of Ladner Pier

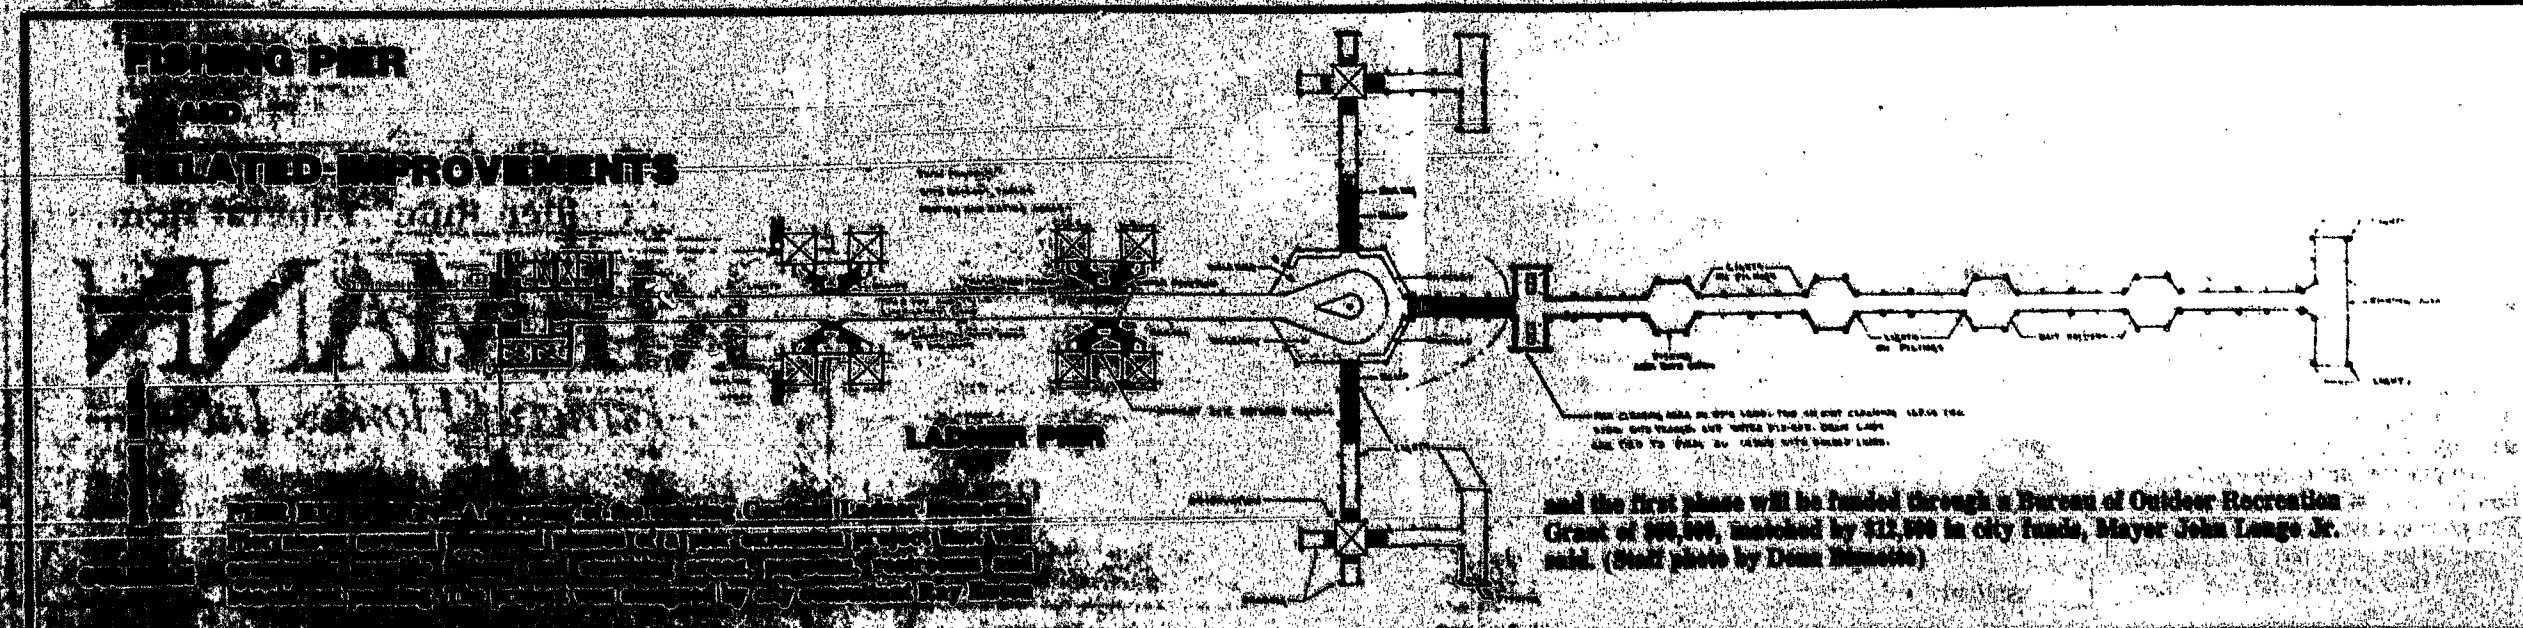

By DENA BISNETTE
Waveland has received $60,000 in matching grant funds for an extension of the Ladner Pier at the end of Terrace Avenue.
The funding comes from Federal Bureau of Outdoor Recreation money that is being administered through the Bureau of Marine Resources.
Jerry Mitchell, a Bureau of Marine Resources representative, presented the grant money at a meeting of the Waveland Board of Aldermen.
Mayor John Longo Jr. said the city plans to use the $12,000 in matching funds to build a parking lot because the city's budget is tight and the federal grant is the only source of money for the project.

The pier extension also has the endorsement of the State Parks Commission because its proximity to Buccoo Bay State Park is expected to help increase usage at that facility, Longo added.
The pier project was designed by the city's consultant, Ray Eaton, with input from a committee consisting of Longo, Aldermen Louis Sotolowsky, Vincent Schott, Ray Kidd, Buddy Klein, Nancy Gex and Donald Caserta. Mitchell served as a technical consultant.
The original phase of the project calls for a 200-foot fishing pier with lighting, fish cleaning areas, bait holders, benches and a handicapped-access ramp.
Phase II calls for later additions including restrooms, a storage and electrical building for pier maintenance, fences, sidewalks, water fountains and other facilities.

A third proposed phase includes an emergency access road for the facility.
Four pagodas to be constructed along the pier would highlight the fourth phase of development and addition of side piers and crabbing areas is proposed as a fifth phase.
Later phases would add more pagodas and a parking area as well as general street and drainage improvements in the surrounding area, according to a waterfront needs analysis report prepared by Eaton.
Longo said he hopes to be able to secure future grants for the later phases, mostly through Bureau of Outdoor Recreation and Bureau of Marine Resources.
Even the initial phase, however, is expected to be beneficial for both the city residents and the tourists who use Buccoo Bay park, the mayor said.

VICTORY IN JESUS

By W. Edwin Kearley

Paul concluded his treatise on the resurrection by saying, "But thanks be to God, which giveth us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." (I Corinthians 15:57)

Who is the enemy? To the Ephesians Paul wrote, "Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." (Ephesians 6:10-11)

The devil is our enemy. If the victory is to be gained, we must prepare for the battle. Peter warned, "Be sober, be vigilant; because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about seeking whom he may devour: whom resist steadfast in the faith." (I Peter 5:8-9)

Though the devil is pictured as a roaring lion prancing to and fro, he is not that visible. He is very active in seeking to destroy mankind, but he does not advertise himself as the devil.

The devil disguises himself and uses people he has already deceived. Hear Paul, "For such are false apostles, deceitful workers, transforming themselves into apostles of Christ. And no marvel; for satan himself is transformed as the minister of righteousness; whose end shall be according to their works." (II Corinthians 11:13-15)

There are three mediums through which all temptations come to each of us. Because of this fact, we need to be careful with our affections.

John taught, "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of the Father abideth forever." (I John 2:15-17)

The first temptation and fall of Adam and Eve came through the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eye and the vain glory of life. The devil appealed to the lust of the eye by telling Eve how good the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil looked. He appealed to the lust of the flesh by convincing her the fruit tasted good. The temptation to the vain glory of life by inciting Eve to believe God did not want her to be as he knowing good and evil.

This convinced Eve. She ate and gave to Adam and he did eat. Sin was introduced into the world. All have yielded to sin, who have reached the ability to distinguish between good and evil.

How are we to fight against the enemy of our souls? Paul tells us, "For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against rules of darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places." (Ephesians 6:12)

Even in our common language we speak of "the battle of life." Even for ordinary purposes we have to fight against indolence, evil habits, dishonest tendencies, and many other things in ourselves. Outside ourselves we fight against opposition, ill treatment on the part of others, and the depressing effect of trial and disappointment and false doctrine.

Though evil involves people, we are not to fight against a person's physical body. The Christian's warfare is spiritual. A battle for the mind. Paul urged Timothy, "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on life eternal, whereunto thou art called, and hast professed a good profession." (I Timothy 6:12)

We are to "fight the good fight of faith." To the Corinthians Paul was more specific, "For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh: (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds;) casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." (II Corinthians 10:3-5)

In our next installment, we will discuss more about how the victory is won in our Lord Jesus Christ.

Good food buys

Compare and shop carefully for best buys

A few chosen food management tips can be beneficial to all shoppers. Develop a food plan based on family and individual needs - consider nutrition, age and activity. Consider food preferences and eating habits such as schedule for meals and snacks, health or physical requirements.

Don't forget foods on hand - use them to prevent waste. They will not provide economy just stored in the pantry. Plan for and maintain foods on hand to meet unexpected needs for weather, guests, illness, etc. Rotate the stock by using older items. But don't neglect replacing them with a fresh supply. Check store specials and save when they fit the individual food plan.

A written shopping list may save time and money, as well as prevent overlooking some needed items. Let the list be sufficiently flexible to take advantage of in-store situations for cost savings, quality variations or sales.

Compare cost of different forms of foods (fresh, canned, dried, etc.) to determine the best buy. Simply divide the price by the number of servings. The lower price is the thrifty choice. However, do not forget to consider quality, content or ingredients and convenience along with cost.

Usually foods that are already prepared or partially prepared cost more, but there are some exceptions to this guide. The additional cost of work that has been done for you may be worth the price when time, skill or facilities are limited.

Read labels to learn quality, quantity and content. It isn't always necessary to choose the top grade. Lower grades can be nutritious. The flavor may be as desirable and the price is usually lower than top grades. The difference is likely to be in tenderness, appearance, characteristic of color, shape and uniformity of pieces.

The label will give the quantity content. Weight is usually a better guide to value than volume, the package size or number. For example, a pound of small oranges is likely to yield as much and often more juice than a pound of large ones, and a big package of spareribs will have much more waste than the smaller package of ground beef.

Cost-per-serving of the edible portion is the cost that really counts. The portion that is waste is also included in the price, but since it is not edible it does not provide food value.

Shop For foods that are good sources of important nutrients. Nutrition labels on many foods can help to identify foods that make significant nutritional contribution. Choose fortified, enriched or restored foods for extra nutrition.

Store and prepare foods properly to retain nutritional content and best quality to prevent costly waste and get the greatest satisfaction for the money spent.

MISSISSIPPI'S TORNADO RECORD

Mississippians who get nervous when that little funnel cloud emblem pops up in the corner of their television screens have pretty good justification for their feelings.

According to the national weather service, this state's worst tornadoes reported since 1880 have killed 1,340 persons; injured 8,197, and created property damages totaling about $140 million.

A closer look at Mississippi's tornado history was prompted by some of the "most" designations attached to the Jones County tornado.

David R. Jones, president of the weather service's "Storm" section, said the Jones County tornado with its wind velocity of between 100 and 150 miles per hour was the strongest to develop in the United States in nearly two years.

And nationally recognized tornado expert Theodore Fujita of the University of Chicago, said the width of the storm's path—up to nearly two miles—was the widest for any tornado of that strength.

But said the Jones tornado was unique in that it almost contained an eye, as do hurricanes. An eye is the center of the storm which is surrounded by swirling winds.

Travelling through the storm area the eye brings a calm, temporary respite before the second half arrives, creating even more havoc in most cases.

Of the 21 worst tornado events recorded in Mississippi listing for nearly the past century and a half, the Jones County tornado had the highest cost figure—an estimated $30 million.

What is unusual about that is that this tornado was primarily a rural one and did not strike a single incorporated town.

But was the Jones tornado really the most expensive when inflation is taken into account? That's for economists to quibble over.

This state's second most costly tornado struck downtown Vicksburg on Dec. 5, 1953, killing 38 persons while putting $25 million of property in shambles.

Next down the list of the most property damaging tornadoes were the ones at McComb in 1975, $21 million; Mississippi Delta, 1971, $19 million; Jackson's "Candlestick Park" and central Mississippi, 1965, $18 million, and whose damages ran about the same as that in Water Valley in 1964.

Mississippi's worst killer tornado was recorded on May 7, 1940 at Natchez as 317 persons perished in the storm. No records then were kept of property damage estimates. But this was two decades before the Civil War when Natchez was home to more millionaires than any other place in this nation.

The second worst killer came to Tupelo on April 5, 1936, and killed 216 people while injuring 700. Yet property damage then was only $2½ million. Or maybe inflation in those post-depression years was yet little known.

From a national standpoint, the Natchez tornado of 1940 and the Tupelo strike in 1936 are in the national records as the second and third worst single tornadoes in recorded U.S. weather history in terms of people killed.

All of this makes it all the more amazing that the Jones County tornado with a record breaking wide swath and wind velocities near the top of recorded levels for tornadoes only killed six persons, according to national weather service records.

For the record, however, four others died indirectly from the storm's effects—mainly from heart attacks.

HOMESOWNERS TAKEN

Q: What are the initial estimates regarding the impact of the new federal tax law changes on the individual homeowner? R. T. Hattisburg

A: Dear R.T.: As you know, an indispensable political ingredient of the new tax reform was the retention of homeowners' deductions for mortgage interest and property taxes.

However, homeowners can expect to pay higher levies to help the new system reach its goal of not adding to the deficit.

Rough "guesstimates" say that the mortgage interest deduction under tax reform will be worth about one-fifth less in dollars for homeowners as a group than would have been the case under the present system.

The guesstimates include only the effect of applying lower marginal tax rates to mortgage interest paid. Under both systems, deductions are worth more in dollars as a taxpayer's top tax bracket rises.

But under tax reform, the top individual bracket falls from 50 to 35 percent range down to 25 percent. In a recently released study, the chief economist of the National Association of Realtors noted two indirect ways, in addition to the effect of lower marginal rates, in which the new system could cut the value of homeowners' deductions.

First, several business deductions are eliminated, including those for state sales tax and consumer credit interest, and several are restricted.

Second, the standard deduction will rise from $2,075 under the present system to $2,450 under the new system on a joint return in 1987.

Homeowner's interest and property taxes are not subtracted directly in figuring taxable income. They cut income taxes only insofar as total deductions exceed the standard deduction. Hence, business deductions will be sharply reduced for many taxpayers.

CONDOMINIUM MAINTENANCE: WHO IS FIRST RESPONSIBLE?

Q: Can you give me some insight as to exactly who is responsible for the maintenance expenses in a condominium? G.H. McCamb

A: Dear G.H.:

For many condominium purchasers, part of the attractiveness of owning such a unit is the lure of no maintenance responsibilities. And the temptation grows with promotional statements like "a modest, monthly condominium fee assures that all maintenance will be taken care of for you."

Many first-time condo buyers give little thought to exactly how the process works, who actually does the maintenance, or who ultimately makes the decisions about what maintenance gets done. Experience in many projects shows that maintenance is hardly something that "is taken care of" for the owner.

First, of course, there is the question of who is responsible for what. While the exact definition of ownership will vary from one condominium to another, the individual owner is typically responsible for repairs within the unit, including the inside surface of the outside walls, floors, and ceilings.

Conversely, the owners association is responsible for all exterior surfaces and common area facilities, such as swimming pools, landscaping, paving, etc.

As with any agreement, there are always some "gray" areas. For example, chimney cleaning may be the responsibility of the individual owner, while chimney repairs belong to the association.

Skylights tend to be another gray area. Most association rules make windows the responsibility of the owner and roofs the responsibility of the association. Thus, skylights become the subject of some debate.

Many of the rough edges of defining responsibility for maintenance have been worked out with more recent documents. Thus, the older the association, the higher the probability of encountering difficulties in defining responsibility.

Prior to purchasing a unit, make sure that you have read exactly what you will be responsible for and what fees are to be collected.

If there are any questions that the developer cannot answer to your satisfaction, you should consult legal counsel, specifically an attorney that understands a condominium form of ownership.

Quality of education should be everyone's primary concern

Education appears to be on the top of the priority list of many Hancock Countians and this is very good.

In order for our county, as well as any other county in our state to move forward, more emphasis has to be placed on education.

Educational teachings and facilities have to be updated in order to compete in the world today.

It was not too many years ago when a citizen residing in Bay St. Louis, Waveland or the county would have to leave home after receiving a degree from a university.

The reason was because there were very, very few opportunities at home for a person with a college degree.

This was not only Hancock County, but just about every one of the 82 counties of Mississippi.

This meant the 'cream of the crop' of young men and women had to seek employment elsewhere after graduating from college.

A big change sure has come about nowadays, as a young man or woman with a bachelor's degree as well as a master's or doctorate degree has an opportunity in the immediate area.

Consider this: there are 4,759 employees at the National Space Technological Laboratories located in Hancock County.

Starting at the most educated levels, some 22% have a master's or doctorate degree, 37% have a bachelor's degree, 24% have associate's degrees, (some college), while only 17% have a high school education.

Now, the employees at NSTL are very diversified in their specialties.

The NSTL employee skills are divided into the following categories: scientific-engineering, some 18%; business-professional, 12%; technical-crafts-production, 43%; clerical, 13%; and other, 4%.

NSTL is not the only possibility of employment of persons with college educations as we have Borg-Warner and several smaller industries now located here.

Every citizen residing in Hancock County should join hands in making our school systems the best in the state.

Someone has said, "The greatest gift we can bestow is the gift of a good example."

On the subject of good examples, a group of Yazoo County citizens has done us all a favor. On a cold and windy evening a few days ago, a group of 40 Yazoo countians gathered for the purpose of receiving information about the unit system of county road operations.

The loosely knit group call themselves "Yazoo First." There is no formal organizational structure, no bylaws, no dues, and there are no officers.

They are, of course, leaders — those who identify issues of particular interest to Yazoo County and to Yazoo countians — and who call meetings from time to time for discussions of those issues.

Attendance varies, depending upon the issue to be discussed. But all citizens of the county are invited to every meeting.

The group spent two hours in discussion of the county's operation of its road system. They asked for a definition of county unit; they asked for information as to county unit efficiencies in other counties; they asked how they could influence their own county board of supervisors to implement a full unit system.

They discussed the benefits of their present county road operations and some even suggested that the system under which the county operates now is sufficient for Yazoo County.

There was a lesson in democracy. Here were interested citizens, on their own time, meeting to talk about their government.

These were citizens who want nothing more than to make their county a better place in which to live for all its citizens.

Thanks, Yazoo First, for a good example of our American system of government and for your participation in that system.

Weekly Summary
from
Mississippi House of Representatives

By Andrew Reese
House Information Officer

JACKSON— With the long, arduous struggle over a major new highway program finally settled, the Mississippi House of Representatives shifted its attention this week to budget matters and other key issues as the 1987 legislative session neared completion.

The House and Senate faced deadlines this week for floor action and reconsideration of appropriations and revenue bills, with a deadline coming up next week (March 26) to accept or reject amendments from the opposite chamber on general bills and constitutional amendments.

Highways has ranked among the top issues since the session began in January. The compromise highway program, as finally enacted, calls for construction of 1,077 miles of new four-lane highways during the next 14 years at an estimated cost of $1.6 billion. Backers say the program is crucial to Mississippi's economic future and predict it will save numerous lives by reducing traffic accidents on unsafe two-lane roads.

The bill was rejected by the governor but both chambers voted last week to override the veto, permitting the act to take effect despite the governor's objections. In the House, the motion to override was adopted 79-38, one vote more than the necessary 78.

The veto brought mixed reaction among legislators. Those supporting the highway bill were disappointed but not greatly surprised, while others agreed with some of the objections cited in the veto message. The main disagreement revolved largely around the overall cost of the program and funding provisions in the act, including an increase in the state excise tax on gasoline. In addition, some legislators felt the program did not adequately deal with highway needs in certain areas.

Several other major bills were approved last week by the House, including a measure designed to get a better handle on economic development needs in Mississippi.

The measure calls for formulation of "an overall, comprehensive and coordinated plan for maximum and accelerated economic development of the state." It establishes a Special Task Force on Economic Development to work with state agencies in recommending ways to achieve economic goals.

A clearing house for dissemination of information to assist Mississippi's financially stricken agricultural industry would be established under another House-passed bill. The bill also authorizes a voluntary debt mediation program for farmers, and sets up an "emerging crops" plan to encourage development of such crops as blueberries, muscadines and Christmas trees. While nobody claimed the legislation is the answer to farm problems, backers said it was a sincere attempt to provide some help.

Another House-passed bill would authorize the Economic Development Board to set up an International Trade Institute to promote the sale of Mississippi farm products and other products on the international market.

In all, more than 60 bills won House approval last week dealing with a broad mixture of issues ranging from the rights of victims in crime cases to Medicaid benefits for pregnant women and infants. Many of the bills were passed earlier by the Senate, and were expected to wind up in House-Senate conference committees to resolve differences.

A number of other Senate-passed measures died in the House last week, including two controversial tort reform bills and a proposal calling for a statewide referendum this fall on whether a constitutional convention should be held. A bill to create a white-collar crime unit in the Attorney General's office also failed to survive.

The House gave its approval to a bill that would prevent crime victims who testify in a trial from being excluded from the courtroom while other witnesses are on the stand. Another measure calls for the trial judge, as part of the presentencing process, to consider the impact of a crime on the victim. A measure to establish a crime victims' compensation fund under the State Treasurer failed to pass.

Other bills approved by the House last week included proposals to modify a law limiting the number of new nursing homes in the state; allow expansion of Medicaid to include pregnant mothers and infants if funds are available; provide for individual on-site wastewater disposal systems to be approved by state health officials; revise the state's homestead exemption law; establish a new program to monitor groundwater supplies and set reasonable standards; give the State Board of Education more flexibility in deciding at which grade levels to administer basic literacy tests; authorize refinancing of high-interest bonds by local governments to take advantage of current low interest rates; permit motorists to turn left on red at the intersection of two one-way streets; extend the right to request blood tests in paternity cases to both parties by the trial judge; and establish a special residential high school at Mississippi University for Women to serve gifted and talented students in mathematics and science.

The House voted to raise the compulsory school attendance age to 16 by the school year 1989-1990; transfer the duties of the Textbook Procurement Committee to the State Board of Education; cut back on unnecessary paperwork required of classroom teachers; authorize new legal assistants in six circuit court districts; authorize the Public Employees Retirement System to handle investments of retirement funds for 17 separate municipal systems; crack down on use of certain promotional products in sale of real property; continue a program established in 1982 to protect "vulnerable adults" from abuse, neglect or exploitation; authorize development of a regional system of perinatal health care services; update the Veterans Affairs and Home Purchase Law; and authorize the state to sue for damages on behalf of a child in a lawsuit filed by a parent.

"It was very good to see so many people at the Hancock County Criminal Justice Facility's dedication Friday.

We, the elected officials, businessmen and many citizens, were involved in helping this fine facility become a reality.

The new Criminal Justice Facility is a step forward into the future for Hancock County. It is a facility the county has needed very much for many years.

Congratulations are in order for the architect and his associates, contractor and sub-contractors, as they have constructed a very fine facility.

Many of our law enforcement officers from the county and both cities expressed how proud they are of the new jail.

In case you were unable to visit the facility during dedication ceremonies, residents still have an opportunity to see the new jail before the inmates are moved.

Sheriff Ronnie Peterson and his staff will conduct tours from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. today (Sunday) through Thursday.

If you haven't visited the new jail, you may want to drop by for a tour before the inmates arrive.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a workshop on federal contract procurement opportunities, and information on bid preparations and technical assistance, on Wednesday from 7 to 9 p.m.

Leonard Bockman, director of the Mississippi Contract Procurement Center, is scheduled to conduct the workshop.

Bockman was the featured speaker at the Chamber's Morning Edition on Thursday and revealed some startling figures on how many billions of dollars are spent in Mississippi during one year.

The procurement director said in the coming year the government should spend about $5 billion in Mississippi with about 90 percent of it being in the three Coastal counties.

The sad thing is, only about eight percent or so of the purchases will be made in Mississippi.

So as you can see, there are many bucks which will be spent and many local businessmen, whether small or large, could possibly, with the proper guidance, be contracting supplies to the government.

Bockman said the government purchases just about any item a person could think of from contractors.

The workshop is free and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

The workshop will be held at the chamber's office in Bay St. Louis on US-90.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allain

UNIVERSITIES, JUNIOR COLLEGES, STATE WORKERS GET RAISES

The State Fiscal Management Board, based on our best estimates of trends occurring in tax collections today, has asked the Legislature to recognize $45 million that we believe is available to the Legislature to appropriate during this session.

If they accept our recommendation, it could mean pay raises for state employees, university faculty, and junior college faculty.

The additional revenue available did not come from any tax increase on the people of Mississippi, but instead on improved collections of existing taxes and a small windfall from the federal tax reform bill.

We estimate that $12 million will come from the federal tax reform bill. Test money could be used to give $3 million to universities, which would provide a 2.5 percent raise for faculty and staff. The board also recommended that $10 million be used to provide a 2.5 percent raise for state employees, university faculty, and junior college faculty.

Welfare Department for their Identified Needs

In addition, we are urging the Legislature to adopt our budget recommendations that include an $18 million pay raise for state employees.

We are recommending that the other additional revenues, which may only be one-time money, be used to meet urgent sections needs and purchases in this state. These include but not limited to: improvements to the criminal justice system; emergency assistance for Jones County for the impact of the increase in economic development; purchase of a new computer and equipment for the state university.

This money can be used to help us this year and next year. We are urging the Legislature to adopt our budget recommendations that include an $18 million pay raise for state employees. ## Elderly should beware of 'phony repairmen'

Mr. and Mrs. Jones are elderly. They live in a house they've owned for years. They are thinking of having some repairs made to the house, which makes them prime targets for something that happens in Mississippi each year.

Mississippi is invaded by itinerant home repairmen, particularly in the spring and summer, who swindle citizens out of thousands of dollars by charging outrageously high prices for inferior work. Many of the victims are elderly, and the Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA), Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, urges elderly individuals like the Joneses to take precautions when having home repair work done.

According to the Consumer Protection Division of the State Attorney General's Office, some Mississippians have been swindled out of thousands of dollars for two or three hours of work. A common approach is for repairmen to tell homeowners that they just happen to be in the neighborhood on another job. They then offer to do a "quick" repair, such as painting a wall or fixing a leaky faucet, and charge a high price.

People with elderly relatives are encouraged to discuss this type of scheme and share the following information with them.

* When considering home improvements, try to deal with a reputable local contractor.

* Ask for references, check them thoroughly.

* Do not agree on the spot to have work done by those who come to your door unasked. The work these people do usually is calculated to last just slightly longer than their stay in your neighborhood or town.

* Never pay in advance. Always pay as the work is completed or after all work is finished. Inspect and make sure the work meets with your approval before making payment.

* Don't be taken in by companies that promise large discounts in exchange for the privilege of using your house as a "model" to show other prospective customers.

* Don't be overly impressed by contractors who tell you that they are licensed, insured and bonded. These terms are impressive, but often provide little or no additional protection to the homeowner.

* Remember that reputable, local contractors normally do not require a cash advance for the purchase of materials, as they can usually obtain them on credit from a building supply firm that bills the contractor when the job is completed.

* Always, when entering into a home repair or home addition agreement, obtain a signed contract from the contractor. The contract should contain details of the exact work to be performed, the exact cost of labor and materials, the name of the suppliers of materials and any subcontractors, a guaranteed date of completion, a "waiver of lien" provision signed by the contractors or materials suppliers used by the contractors and a written warranty.

* If a person is victimized by a home repair scheme, the individual should stop payment on any checks as soon as a mistake is realized. Also, immediately contact the local police or sheriff's office and the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office. It also is wise to write down a complete description of the individuals involved and their vehicles and license plate numbers if possible.

For more information on fraud involving the elderly, contact the Mississippi Council on Aging at 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson 39203-3090, phone 948-2013.

Quality of education should be everyone's primary concern

Education appears to be on the top of the priority list of many Hancock Countians and this is very good.

In order for our county, as well as any other county in our state to move forward, more emphasis has to be placed on education.

Educational teachings and facilities have to be updated in order to compete in the world today.

It was not too many years ago when a citizen residing in Bay St. Louis, Waveland or the county would have to leave home after receiving a degree from a university.

The reason was because there were very, very few opportunities at home for a person with a college degree.

This was not only Hancock County, but just about every one of the 82 counties of Mississippi.

This meant the "cream of the crop" of young men and women had to seek employment elsewhere after graduating from college.

A big change sure has come about nowadays, as a young man or woman with a bachelor's degree as well as a master's or doctorate degree has an opportunity in the immediate area.

Consider this: there are 4,759 employees at the National Space Technological Laboratories located in Hancock County.

Starting at the most educated levels, some 22% have a master's or doctorate degree, 37% have a bachelor's degree, 24% have associate's degrees, (some college), while only 17% have a high school education.

The procurement director said in the coming year the government should spend about $5 billion in Mississippi with about 90 percent of it being in the three Coastal counties.

The sad thing is, only about eight percent or so of the purchases will be made in Mississippi.

So as you can see, there are many bucks which will be spent and many local businessmen, whether small or large, could possibly, with the proper guidance, be contracting supplies to the government.

Bockman said the government purchases just about any item a person could think of from contractors.

The workshop is free and it is hoped there will be a large attendance.

The workshop will be held at the chamber's office in Bay St. Louis on US-90.

News From The Governor's Office

Gov. Bill Allmon

UNIVERSITIES, JUNIOR COLLEGES, STATE WORKERS GET RAISES

The State Fiscal Management Board, based on our best estimates of trends occurring in tax collections today, has asked the Legislature to recognize $43 million that we believe is available to the Legislature to appropriate during this session.

If they accept our recommendation, it could mean pay raises for state employees, university faculty, and junior college faculty.

The additional revenue available did not come from any tax increase on the people of Mississippi, but instead on improved collections of existing taxes and a small windfall from the federal tax reform bill.

We estimate that $12-million will come from the federal tax reform bill.

That money could be used to give $4 million to universities, which would provide a $4,000 increase in the board's recommended $100,000 increase in junior college faculty pay. The board also recommended a $1 million increase in state employee pay, which would provide a $1,000 increase in the board's recommended $10,000 increase in state employee pay. The board also recommended a $1 million increase in state employee pay, which would provide a $1,000 increase in the board's recommended $10,000 increase in state employee pay.

Welfare Department for their identified needs.

In addition, we are urging the Legislature to adopt our budget recommendations that include an $18 million pay raise for state employees.

We are recommending that the other additional revenues, which may only be one-time money, be used to meet urgent needs and purchases in the state. These include tax book purchases, improvements to the criminal justice system, emergency assistance to Jones County for the income tax, increases in economic development, purchase of a new computer and equipment purchases for the State universities.

This money can be used to help us pay our bills and to help us with the state's economic problems. ## Elderly should beware of 'phony repairmen'

Mr. and Mrs. Jones are elderly. They live in a house they've owned for years. They are thinking of having some repairs made to the house, which makes them prime targets for something that happens in Mississippi each year.

Mississippi is invaded by itinerant home repairmen, particularly in the spring and summer, who swindle citizens out of thousands of dollars by charging outrageously high prices for inferior work. Many of the victims are elderly, and the Mississippi Council on Aging (MCOA), Governor's Office of Federal-State Programs, urges elderly individuals like the Joneses to take precautions when having home repair work done.

According to the Consumer Protection Division of the State Attorney General's Office, some Mississippians have been swindled out of thousands of dollars for two or three hours of work. A common approach is for repairmen to tell homeowners that they just happen to be in the neighborhood on another job, and they offer a special discount. The repairman then takes the homeowner to a place where he has a large number of tools and materials, and he charges a high price for them.

One way to avoid being swindled is to have a local contractor estimate the work and then have the repairman come to the house. If the repairman is not a local contractor, he is usually a phony.

Persons with elderly relatives are encouraged to discuss this type of scheme and share the following information with them.

• When considering home improvements, try to deal with a reputable local contractor.

• Ask for references, check them thoroughly.

• Do not agree on the spot to have work done by those who come to your door unasked. The work these people do usually is calculated to last just slightly longer than their stay in your neighborhood or town.

• Never pay in advance. Always pay as the work is completed or after all work is finished. Inspect and make sure the work meets with your approval before making payment.

• Don't be taken in by companies that promise large discounts in exchange for the privilege of using your home as a "model" to show other prospective customers.

• Don't be overly impressed by contractors who tell you that they are licensed, insured and bonded. These terms are impressive, but often provide little or no additional protection to the homeowner.

• Remember that reputable, local contractors normally do not require a cash advance for the purchase of materials, as they can usually obtain these on credit from a building supply firm that bills the contractor when the job is completed.

• Always, when entering into a home repair or home addition agreement, have a signed contract from the contractor. The contract should contain details of the exact work to be performed, the exact cost of labor and materials, the type and quality of materials, the name of the suppliers of materials and any subcontractors, a guaranteed date of completion, a "waiver of lien" provision signed by the contractors or materials suppliers used by the contractors and a written warranty.

• If a person is victimized by a home repair scheme, the individual should stop payment on any checks

as soon as a mistake is realized. Also, immediately contact the local police or sheriff's office and the Consumer Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office. It also is wise to write down a complete description of the individuals involved and their vehicles and license plate numbers if possible.

For more information on fraud involving the elderly, contact the Mississippi Council on Aging at 301 W. Pearl St., Jackson 39203-3090, phone 949-2013.

The IRS will be available on Saturday

The Internal Revenue Service is opening its telephone lines to do business on Saturdays.

From now through April 15, 1987, the last day to meet the deadline for filing your 1986 Federal income tax, the IRS toll-free site in Atlanta will be open Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mississippi time.

Mississippi taxpayers can call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040 to get free help in preparing their 1986 tax returns.

Jackson District Director Tully Miller said the extra hours is a move to provide more convenience to taxpayers. "Many taxpayers work during the week and find it hard to take the time to make a needed call," Miller said. "These extra hours on Saturdays will provide many working people with the extra convenience they need to file an accurate return and file it on time."

Taxpayers can still get free help on the 800 number weekdays from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mississippi time.

"Often, Mississippians can get their questions answered quickly between 7 and 8 a.m. since the telephones are answered in Atlanta, Georgia, which is an hour ahead of us here in Mississippi," Miller noted.

Miller also said the average time it is currently taking for the service center to get refunds back to Mississippians is 4-6 weeks. "File now and beat the large group of last-minute filers. Especially if you have a refund due. And don't forget to check your math, sign the return and date it—both sign if it is a joint return—use the peel-off label and computer-coded envelope which came in your tax package," he said. The IRS says that speeding up the processing and getting tax refund you may have coming back to you faster.

"To date, taxpayers have filed fewer returns than they did during the same period last year (down by 4.7 percent). The average refund this year so far is about $427. Last year—$700.

The IRS will be available on Saturday

The Internal Revenue Service is opening its telephone lines to do business on Saturdays!

From now through April 15, 1987, the last day to meet the deadline for filing your 1986 Federal income tax, the IRS toll-free site in Atlanta will be open Saturdays from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Mississippi time.

Mississippi taxpayers can call the IRS toll-free at 1-800-424-1040 to get free help in preparing their 1986 tax returns.

Jackson District Director Tully Miller said the extra hours is a move to provide more convenience to taxpayers. "Many taxpayers work during the week and find it hard to take the time to make a needed call," Miller said. "These extra hours on Saturdays will provide many working people with the extra convenience they need to file an accurate return and file it on time."

Taxpayers can still get free help on the 800 number weekdays from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Mississippi time.

"Often, Mississippians can get their questions answered quickly between 7 and 8 a.m. since the telephones are answered in Atlanta, Georgia, which is an hour ahead of us here in Mississippi," Miller noted.

Miller also said the average time it is currently taking for the service center to get refunds back to Mississippians is 4-6 weeks. "File now and beat the large group of last-minute filers. Especially if you have a refund due. And don't forget to check your math, sign the return and date it - both sign it if it is a joint return - use the peel-off label and computer-coded envelope which came in your tax package," he said. The IRS says that the speedier the processing and the more tax refund you may have coming back to you faster.

"In date, taxpayers have received fewer refunds than they did during the same period last year (increased by 4.7 percent). The average refund this year so far is about $127. Last year - $700.

Public television celebrates classical music in two specials

In two programs on Friday evening, March 27, public television celebrates the art of the arts for which it has been a classical music. From modern-day giants in the world of classical music—Belli Ocasio and the Beaux Arts Trio—are paid tribute through documentary material as well as performance segments.

"Great Performances" at 9 p.m. presents Albert and David Mayes' documentary film "Osawa" about one of the world's leading conductors, Burt Osawa, music director of the Boston Symphony.

Filmed on location in Tanglewood, Salem, Berlin, Tokyo and Osaka, the "Great Performances" program captures Osawa as he rehearses, performs, relaxes at his Boston home with his wife and children and oversees his musical projects in Japan. Performing during the program are cellist Yo-Yo Ma, pianist Radu Serkin and soprano Jeanne Norman.

The internationally acclaimed Beaux Arts Trio—Mansheim Pressler, Isidor Cohen and Bernard Greenhouse—considered by many critics to be the finest chamber music group in the world, performs two masterworks of piano trio literature on "The Beaux Arts Trio: An Enduring Sound" at 10 p.m.

The program includes part of the Trio's 30th anniversary concert at the Musical Arts Center on the Indiana University campus in Bloomington, where the group has performed regularly since its founding. The broadcast also includes an interview with the members of the trio during their summer appearance at Tanglewood, the renowned music festival in western Massachusetts where the group made its debut in the summer of 1955.

Myers leans

Myers' father took on a New England vacation last year.

In addition to the New Orleans scenes, Myers has already painted several other pictures including a "typical Seattle ferry" and an old photograph of a family looking at the Statue of Liberty.

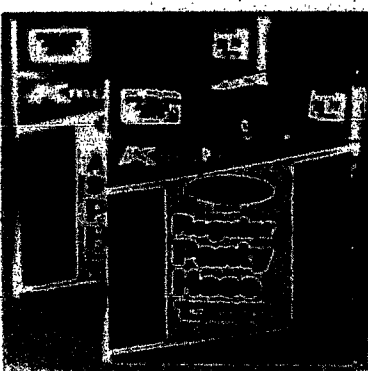

Myers is currently working to get enough pictures completed to hold a show.

have not completed it seems to be a totally different work and I see it differently than when I had begun," Myers said.

To complete a picture in one sitting means hours of detailed drawing and planning, and then beginning all over with the paints.

"But I really like what I am doing and other than the backache from sitting too long, I don't have any complaints," he said.

Myers' New Orleans scenes paintings are surrealistic and range from just a glimpse of an enclosed patio to a sidewalk scene with silhouetted shoppers.

Myers lives part time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neal Myers Sr. in Pearl, Mississippi and part time with his brother in New Orleans, Louisiana. Myers has a lot of time in Hancock County visiting friends and family. He is married to Mrs. Myers.

Myers' time to paint is often a hobby. He is a painter who spends considerable time traveling between the two states. Myers also takes time to paint at his home in Mississippi.
